

Our courses

Every client is an individual with a unique set of needs. With this in mind, CELT analyse the language skills needed by clients and design a tailored language training programme to suit the individual needs and expectations of the student.

We believe that when defining and developing a course, each participant's work demands, training objectives and most importantly the individual's learning style, interests and current skills in the target language should be taken into account. We do our utmost to provide every individual and group with a customised training agenda linked to the participant's professional role, whilst at the same time keeping our courses as enjoyable and interactive as possible.

As all of our courses are designed with busy professionals in mind, CELT teachers will come to your company to teach when it is most convenient for you.
